Professor: Bismi-llāhi ar-rahmāni ar-rahīmi [Arabic for: In the Name of God, most Gracious, most Merciful]. My name is Dr. Wajid. I am an assistant professor here. Basically, this university started from 1980 and almost more than ten departments in this university are running [means: functional]. I (also) started my earlier education here. If you compare the educational standard of this university with other Pakistani universities we are quite happy to say that its educational standards are comparable to (the) good universities of Pakistan. Here (there) are a large number of doctors who teach the students. Recently, I completed my PhD at PIEAS (Pakistan Institute of Engineering and Applied Sciences, Islamabad). If we compare the standard of students with other universities (in Pakistan), it is quite high. Our students get are getting job opportunities not only in Pakistan but also abroad, and the teachers are doing their hard work to raise the standard of education in this university.

About CultureTalk: CultureTalk is produced by the Five College Center for the Study of World Languages and housed on the LangMedia Website. The project provides students of language and culture with samples of people talking about their lives in the languages they use everyday. The participants in CultureTalk interviews and discussions are of many different ages and walks of life. They are free to express themselves as they wish. The ideas and opinions presented here are those of the participants. Inclusion in CultureTalk does not represent endorsement of these ideas or opinions by the Five College Center for the Study of World Languages, Five Colleges, Incorporated, or any of its member institutions: Amherst College, Hampshire College, Mount Holyoke College, Smith College and the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.
