English transcript:

Mariama: Is that the reserve?

Ibrahima: Yes, it is.

Mariama: What about those?

Ibrahima: We put them here to separate them.

* Italics indicate French.

Mariama: You put them apart, and then you keep them here for how many days?

Ibrahima: We wash them first.

Mariama: So you wash them?

Ibrahima: Then we re-count them, and then we put them apart.

Mariama: So you count them?

Ibrahima: The clean ones that we are going to sell are brought here.

Ibrahima: We clean them first, and then we count them.

Mariama: You count them?

Ibrahima: Yes, and we bring the clean shells we are going to sell here.

Mariama: So you bring the clean ones here?

Ibrahima: Yes I bring the clean ones here. We bring about....

Mariama: About how many of them do you bring here; 3000 or 4000 dozen per trip?

Ibrahima: 3000 to 4000 dozen per trip.

Mariama: That's an important number.

Ibrahima: The government built it, so we don't pay.

Mariama: So the state is helping you?

Ibrahima: Yes, it's really helpful, because actually there is a project that is funded only to repair the reserve.

Mariama: So the project is financed only to repair the places where the oysters are sold?

Ibrahima: Right.

Mariama: So the state did a nice job there!

Ibrahima: Yes, we are really happy about it.

Mariama: But it could have made an effort and given you more funds.

Ibrahima: Yes that's the only thing left.

Mariama: And freezer trucks

Ibrahima: Yes.

Mariama: So that you can transport the merchandise.

Ibrahima: Yes, to transport the merchandise, that's the only thing left.

Mariama: That's true. Thank you very much.

Ibrahima: Yes, all this has been accomplished with the help of the government.

Mariama: So, the government is helping you maintain the hygiene of the shells?

Ibrahima: Yes. Now there's a project that it financed to rebuild the reservation, so that the shells can be kept in better conditions.

Mariama: I think the government did well, then. Now the only thing you guys need is more money and trucks with freezers so that you can transport the shells well.

Ibrahima: Exactly.

Mariama: Thank you, Ibrahima.
