My name is Sayed Ibrahim Hussein. I am Egyptian, of course. I am a graduate of George Washington University. My Ph.D. is in science, electrical and computer engineering, 1990 or 1989. I am specialist in the area of telecommunication networks and network security. When I finished my Ph.D., when I finished my Ph.D., I came back to Egypt to serve my country, to do my best in serving the area[s] of network and security back in Egypt. I did a lot of jobs and a lot of projects in Egypt, and sharing many, many projects in Egypt, in the Ministry of Finance, Ministry of Transportation, Ministry of Agriculture, everything ... I did a project in Egypt. But, when I feel there is an attack against the success in Egypt ... I feel that Egyptians, when there is an individual success, they are against this success. This is what I saw there. I do not want to say that all Egyptians are like this, because a lot of Egyptians are very good people. However, there are individuals who are against success, not because of the success itself but because of the benefit behind this success. They like to take the benefit that's behind success. If they did not get this benefit, they are against it.

-This city is considered one of the best places in Cairo.

-It is Okay, one of the best places; it is okay, but right now it isn't ... right now, because of the over- crowdedness of people [who have] immigrated to Nasser City.
