

Extracurriculars at a Mission School

English translation:

The other thing that I liked to do the most, ever since I was a child, is to read... umm anything that I found to read, like the books that belonged to other people who were in secondary school at that time, magazines, or even old newspapers. When I went to secondary school, I stopped participating in sports. I was [too] lazy to run and to do the other things. I was in the chess club but I think I joined in when I was in form three<sup>1</sup> up to form four. That is one activity, other than school work, that I participated in at Holy Cross. I used to support sports a lot, especially our soccer team and during the athletics season, but as for me participating, mmm....I was not involved that much. There was... umm like I said before, the school was a Catholic mission school, so the other activities that we did involved participating in the church programs like reading the Bible, the mass, or singing in the church choir. Once in a while I used to participate in such activities. Especially... my friends were involved in sports, that is the reason why I was a major supporter, but I did not participate in much.

About CultureTalk: CultureTalk is produced by the Five College Center for the Study of World Languages and housed on the LangMedia Website. The project provides students of language and culture with samples of people talking about their lives in the languages they use every day. The participants in CultureTalk interviews and discussions are of many different ages and walks of life. They are free to express themselves as they wish. The ideas and opinions presented here are those of the participants. Inclusion in CultureTalk does not represent endorsement of these ideas or opinions by the Five College Center for the Study of World Languages, Five Colleges, Incorporated, or any of its member institutions: Amherst College, Hampshire College, Mount Holyoke College, Smith College and the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.
