

Mission Schools

English translation:

A mission school is different from a government school in that... I can refer to it as a private school but it will be... The teachings have to do with the Roman Catholic Church [doctrines] so it has a Christian foundation in most of its activities, so there are additional subjects that are offered that focus on religious education. The values in general are in accordance with Roman Catholic values. It is different from a private school in that...on the level of fees, for example, they charge fees that are similar to the [fees charged by] government [schools]. I can say it is in between government schools and the private schools that we know of.

About CultureTalk: CultureTalk is produced by the Five College Center for the Study of World Languages and housed on the LangMedia Website. The project provides students of language and culture with samples of people talking about their lives in the languages they use every day. The participants in CultureTalk interviews and discussions are of many different ages and walks of life. They are free to express themselves as they wish. The ideas and opinions presented here are those of the participants. Inclusion in CultureTalk does not represent endorsement of these ideas or opinions by the Five College Center for the Study of World Languages, Five Colleges, Incorporated, or any of its member institutions: Amherst College, Hampshire College, Mount Holyoke College, Smith College and the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.
